This poem was written by Harold W. Grills after his wife's death.

IN MEMORY

They say if our beloved dead
Should seek the old familiar place,
Some stranger would be there instead
And they would find no welcome face.
I cannot tell how it would be
In other homes—but this I know;
That she would never find it so.
Oft times the flowers have come and gone,
Oft times the winter winds have blown,
The while her peaceful rest went on.
And I have learned to live alone.
How slowly learned from day to day,
In all life's task to bear my part,
And whether grave or whether gay
