TELEGRAPH AND MAIL. GLADSTONE ON IRELAND.

Scathing Impeachment of Parnell.

At the banquet given Mr. Gladstone to-night 1,400 were present. Mr. Gladstone said:—Justice to Ireland is a sacred duty, but it can never be performed without equal justice to England and Scotland. The state of Ireland is not a party question. Ireland is in a great crisis, and on the working of the Land Act may depend the greatest issues with regard to her prosperity. Powerful agencies are working which will yet influence her fate in spite of the action of persons. I do not believe there are labourers in any country that have made more progress than the Irish labourers. Mr. Gladstone warmly eulogized Sir Charles Gavan Duffy for his pamphlet advocating the grateful acceptance of the Land Act. Mr. Gladstone claimed Dillon as an opponent, but an opponent who was glad to honour, and added, "I now have the painful duty of dealing with a very different class of opponents. A small body of men has arisen who are not ashamed to preach to Ireland the

A DOCTRINE OF PUBLIC PLUNDER. The state of things in Ireland is coming to a question of law on the one hand, and of sheer lawlessness on the other." Mr. Gladstone favourably contrasted O'Connell's fidelity to the Crown of England with Parnell's hostility to everything English. "O'Connell," he said, "on every occasion declared his respect for property, but Parnell has now a new gospel, that of plunder, to proclaim. He sees now that whereas the rental of Ireland is seventeen millions of pounds, the original value of the land amounting to three million pounds, O'Connell's respect for human life was consistent; Parnell is very copious in his references to America, but in all those references he has never found time to utter a word of disapproval about the

ANASSINATION LITERATURE of that country, which is not American literature. Americanism, spurs, and loathe it. (Loud cheers.) Parnell, during the last session of Parliament, made every effort to destroy the effect of the Land Bill. He did not dare vote against it like a man, but when the life of the Bill was at stake Parnell and thirty of his followers withdrew from the House of Commons and tried to destroy the work which the Government had begun. The test cases which Parnell intends to take into the Land Court are cases of land which is fair and well cultivated, and the people they have betrayed, that the Court is worthless and the Land Act ought to meet the unqualified reputation, and so he will play his game and gain his object if the people listen to these fatal doctrines. Parliament is not going to overrun the

PRINCIPLE OF PUBLIC RIGHT and public order to please Parnell." Alluding to agrarian crime, Mr. Gladstone said:—"What would happen in England if crime proved beyond the exertions of the law? Vast multitudes of loyal citizens would array themselves in support of the law. But no such thing is heard of in Ireland. General cowardice seems to prevail among all the classes who possess property, and the Government is expected to preserve peace with no moral force behind them. That is a great scandal and

EVIL FOR IRELAND not to be thoroughly healthy. We are convinced that the Irish nation desires to take full advantage of the Land Act, but Parnell says 'No.' The Government will rely upon the good sense of the people, because it is determined that no force, or fear of force, or fear of ruin through force, shall prevent the people from having the full benefit of the Land Act. I call upon all orders and degrees of men in the three Kingdoms to support the Government." (Prolonged cheers.) Three thousand torch-bearers lined the route along which Mr. Gladstone drove home. There was an enormous crowd along the route and great enthusiasm.
